Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability;
citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US 2002/129972 A1 (KONRAD JOHN JOSEPH ET AL) 19 September 2002
(2002-09-19)

1. Document D1 discloses (paragraphs 18 - 39; figs. 1a - 1d) a method of manufacturing a circuit carrier, the method comprising the following steps:
- a) providing a substrate 1;
 - b) coating the substrate on one side thereof with a dielectric 2;
 - c) structuring the dielectric for producing trenches and vias 3 therein using laser ablation;
 - d) depositing a primer layer 4 into the produced trenches and vias only;
 - e) depositing a metal layer 5 onto the primer layer, with the trenches and vias being completely filled with metal for forming conductor structures therein.

Thus, the subject matter of claim 1 differs from this known method at least in that

- i) in step a) a printed circuit board is provided instead of a substrate; and
- ii) the trenches produced in step c) do not extend completely through the dielectric.

Consequently, the subject matter of claim 1 is new (Article 33(2) PCT).

2. Even if the skilled person interchanged the substrate in step a) of the known method with a circuit board, e.g. a single sided board, and used the side free of conductors as an equivalent to using a substrate, he would not arrive at the subject matter of claim 1 as he has no incitement to provide trenches which do not extend completely through the dielectric.

None of the other cited documents, which reflect the technological background, discloses or gives an incitement to the specific solution proposed in claim 1.

In view of the available prior art, the subject matter of claim 1 appears, therefore, to involve an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT).

3. Claims 2 - 16 which define preferred embodiments of the invention are dependent on claim 1 and as such also meet the requirements of the PCT in respect of novelty and inventive step.

Independent claim 17 is directed to an use of the method defined in claim 1. Its subject matter is therefore also new and inventive.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

1. Contrary to the requirements of Rule 5.1(a)(ii) PCT, the relevant background art disclosed in the document D1 is not mentioned in the description, nor is this document identified therein (see also the Guidelines, paragraph 4.05).

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

1. The last paragraph on page 36 of the description implies that the subject matter for which protection is sought may be different to that defined by the claims. This results in lack of clarity of the claims (Article 6 PCT) when the description is used to interpret them (see the Guidelines, paragraph 5.30).

Claims:

1. A method of manufacturing a circuit carrier, said method comprising the following method steps:

- a) Providing a printed circuit board;
- b) Coating the circuit board on at least one side thereof with a dielectric;
- c) Structuring the dielectric for producing trenches and vias therein using laser ablation, the trenches not extending completely through the dielectric;
- d) Depositing a primer layer onto the entire surface of the dielectric or depositing the primer layer into the produced trenches and vias only;
- e) Depositing a metal layer onto the primer layer, with the trenches and vias being completely filled with metal for forming conductor structures therein; and
- f) Removing the metal layer and the primer layer, except for in the trenches and vias, to expose the dielectric if the primer layer has been deposited onto the entire surface in method step d).
